Entry requirements:
Students get to know central theories of organisation and human resources (HR). They are empowered to apply theories in order to explain practical phenomena and to solve practical problems. The ability to put on different "theory glasses" while observing and analysing various organisational and HR practices is fostered. Students learn to deal with different theories in a conscious and critical way, especially through case studies, group work and discussions.

Upon completion of the module, students will:
- be able to explain various classic and modern theories of organisation and human resource theories, differentiate them and reflect them critically;
- be able to apply the theoretical and abstract ways of thinking and perception so as to transfer them on operational decisions;
- develop skills of self-reflection (supported by the technical and didactical concepts).

Skills to be acquired in this module:
- ability to explain various classic and modern theories of organisation and human resource theories, differentiate them and reflect them critically;
- ability to apply the theoretical and abstract ways of thinking and perception so as to transfer them on operational decisions;
- develop skills of self-reflection (supported by the technical and didactical concepts).

Module contents:
Students receive deeper insights into classical and modern theories of organisation and human resource, including:
- Weber's theory of bureaucracy
- Taylor's principles of Scientific Management
- Human Relations approach
- Behavioural decision theory
- Situational approach
- Micro-political approaches
- New Institutional Economics
- Theories of motivation
- Theories of leadership

The presentations and discussions within the seminars also offer possibilities to deepen and broaden these topics according to the student's interest and latest developments in theory and practice.

Reader's advisory:

Further literature will be announced during the semester according to the particular lecture/seminar content.
